About the Session

The Self-Employment Training Session in collaboration with the Rural Development and Self-Employment Training Institute (RUDSETI) plays a pivotal role in community development by fostering entrepreneurship and self-reliance among rural youth. By offering free, high-quality training in various vocational skills, RSETI equips participants to launch sustainable small businesses, addressing unemployment and improving the socio-economic conditions of rural communities. The program not only enhances individual livelihoods but also stimulates local economies by creating micro-enterprises. With ongoing support, mentorship, and access to credit, this initiative ensures long-term success for trainees. This program is vital for empowering the marginalized sections of society, making it an essential step toward rural prosperity and inclusive growth.
